CUSTOMS TYRANNY.

In importing circles in the east a feeling of hostility exists against the system of espionage which is exercised by the customs officials over importers. The ministerial as well as the opposition press is beginning to speak out against this system of tyranny. In a recent issue the Montreal Star—a Conservative Independent journal—discusses the subject. Our contemporary says:

When the people of Canada, by the support they gave at the polls to the Government of Sir John Macdonald, signified their assent to the principles of a National Policy they did not intend to inaugurate the persecution of a large class of their fellow-citizens They did not intend to institute a system of espionage—to create a class of informers—to adopt a system of domiciliary visitation by which the papers of a free citizen should be seized in the hope of furnishing incriminatory evidence against himself. Such methods have been denounced, when they existed in Austria or Italy, and as now existing in Russia; yet we tolerate the same methods in the administration of the Department of Customs. Upon the face of the matter the Czar seems to have the more justification. He is contending with revolutionists who seek to destroy his Government, and even to kill him. The same thing may be said of the late Bourbon Government of Naples and the Austrian Government of Italy. All these were legitimately constituted Governments. Even with more force would a similar justification apply to the endeavors of religious majorities to prevent the propagation of doctrines which they conceived calculated to destroy the souls of men as well as the constituted State authorities. Still, these methods have been condemned by the English people. There has existed an invincible prejudice against them; in spite of the well known fact that all these methods, Russian, Austrian, and Neapolitan, were strictly legal, and the subject matter of their laws was vastly more important; for surely an error of opinion in the matter of the Trinity is more important than one concerning the value of a dozen lead pencils. Now, however, in this Canadian land of freedom, nous avons change tout cela. We have the informers; the secret indictment, the domiciliary visits, the seizure of private papers, the elaborate traps, the attempts to extort confession; we have punishments executed upon astonished people who never heard of an accusation. We have fines imposed upon innocent men who transgress laws made in secret and never promulgated by the officials who profit by the fines. We have a paid staff who make such laws. In this it seems we are worse off than the Russians, for there at least the fact that conspiracy is illegal is promulgated. Is that the National Policy then which the people inaugurated in 1878? It seems to us not. The National Policy is not to oppress the commercial classes and to brand every importer as a thief and a perjurer. It is not to create a class of officials who shall get rich by fines. Under the ordinary rules of justice secret resolutions as to official values are wrong. We have seen in the case of Mr. GRAVEL a citizen fined for not paying duty on a value which was kept secret, and his appeal lies to the officers who kept it secret! We refer only to this one case, but the columns of the press teem with others. It is an inauguration of the tyranny of Bureaucracy. It is a travesty of the National Policy designed not to build up manufacturers but Bureaucrats. The Dominion Government, for the credit of its greatest achievement, should make short work of the Customs Bureaucracy.

INTERIOR ITEMS.

(From the Kamloops Sentinel.)

Mr. J. Hathem, of Winnipeg, recently purchased from Trounce & Hall $3,000 worth of raw hides.

The Shuswap Milling Co. are erecting a residence for Mr. C. F. Cooney in Kamloops.

Mr. Donald Fraser and several other miners are in town from Scotch Creek, purchasing their winter supplies. Mr. F. speaks very hopefully of the future prospect of his mine.

D. J. Darrah arrived from Granite Creek Tuesday and reports mining rather dull at that place. A few claims are paying; the Mainland as high as $15 to the man.

Last train from the east brought Mr. J. W. Marsh, of Lower Nicola, and bride; also an uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood.

Eleven hundred head of cattle, owned by Mr. Harper, passed through here the early part of the week, in charge of Silas Hyman, on their way to the winter range in Chilcotin. John Wilson had also 400 head which he was taking to his range at Grand Prairie for the winter.

James Moore, teamster for Thomas Hornby, met with a severe accident on Monday last. It appears that while engaged in hauling freight from the station his wagon-box slipped forward and striking his horses caused them to run away. He was thrown off, the wheel passing over his leg and breaking it.

A meeting of the Kamloops fire brigade was held last evening at the reading room, Mr. McIntosh in the chair, Mr. McCartney secretary. Moved, seconded and carried that a deputation consisting of Messrs. Mara, McCartney and Edwards should visit the property holders, in order to see what amount of money could be raised in the town towards purchasing a fire engine. The above named gentlemen visited the property holders to-day with satisfactory results. We understand that it is the intention of the Kamloops fire brigade to purchase an engine at once.

THE FAR NORTH.

Interesting Description of Canada's Possessions in the Far North—Rich Gold Fields.

Mr. James E. Chapman, who has resided for the past eighteen months on the Stewart river, one of the northern tributaries of the Yukon, was a passenger by the Ancon, which reached Nanaimo on Saturday last, paid THE TIMES office a visit to-day, and from that gentleman we gather the following particulars relative to mining operations in that far off section of the Dominion: Mr. Chapman left Ohio many years ago, and since then has resided principally on this coast. At present he is en route to San Francisco. Of the fact that the precious dust is to be found in the Yukon district, Mr. Chapman has not the slightest doubt. He has with him weighing 72 ounces and fifty-four one hundreds, valued at $1,281.17, the result of a couple of months' work with very primitive means to catch the dust. The ground in which Mr. Chapman gathered this brick had been previously worked over twice, first by miners early in 1884 and then again later on in the same year. During the same summer months there were about 100 men at work on the different bars tributary to the Yukon, many of whom are reported to have made good pay on their season's operations. Between sixty and seventy will winter at the mouth of the Stewart river at a new camp named Port Nelson. On the Stewart river the water was favorable throughout the summer, enabling miners to prosecute their work almost uninterruptedly. Other streams nearer the coast, however, were never known to be so high. On Lewis river miners were only able to work ten days on account of high water. From parties who had gone further into the interior Mr. Chapman learned that in addition to their making good pay they had discovered excellent prospects. The dust in this district is very fine but heavy, necessitating the finest of appliances to catch and hold it. The ordinary washing process by sluice boxes has proved but partially efficacious, and some other process is now wanted. If that can be discovered a rich yield will reward the miner for his labor. The distance from the coast to where Mr. Chapman was operating was about eight hundred miles to the mouth of the Stewart river; thence 100 miles up that stream to the bar. This distance can be accomplished by a small river steamer of light draught. Messrs. McQuestion & Co., have a steamer already on the route, the craft brought in by Mr. Shfflin wherewith to prospect and now called the "New Racket." The steamer covers the distance in a couple of days. In the winter, by ice, the trip is a hazardous one occupying much time, requiring perseverence and as well as costly. During the season of navigation the trip is a pleasant one, and can be taken in a skiff; the passage being worked by poles and towing. Navigation is easy and practicable. The country is admirably timbered for fuel, building and steamboat purposes. As to the agricultural resources of that far off country, Mr. Chapman asserts that he has tested it thoroughly, as for a couple of years he has cultivated a small garden in which he raised roots, vegetables, lettuce, radishes, &c. While he does not claim that it will be a farming country, there is yet considerable land that will yield abundantly. The climate reaches great extremes. Last winter, on the 3rd, 4th and 5th of January, the thermometer indicated 80 degrees below zero, according to an instrument furnished Mr. McQuestion by the United States Government to make a thorough test of the weather. In summer the mean temperature ranges from 80 to 110 degrees. Rain is not frequent, and showers were considered a great luxury where Mr. Chapman was operating. The outfit to go into this territory is similar to that required by miners for any camp. Provisions and supplies in abundance are to be had at the mouth of the Stewart river. These will be imported from San Francisco early next summer. Parties going in previous to August should, however, bring their supplies with them in order to prevent disappointment.

There are but few Indians in that section of the country. They are quiet and peaceable, and anxious to trade with the white men whom they are gratified to see in their midst. The Indians are in their native condition, dressing in furs, skins and using the bow and arrow in hunting. Of late fire arms have been purchased by many of the tribes.

Mr. Chapman was for many years acting as a missionary for the Presbyterian Church amongst the various tribes in Alaska, under the jurisdiction of Dr. Jackson, of Wrangle, and the Presbytery of Oregon. He established the first church in Wrangle as well as the home for destitute and parentless children. It is his intention to return to the north in March next.

Mr. Frank Dinsmore, who has been mining on the Yukon for five years, was a passenger by the Ancon. Like all the other miners who have been on Stewart river this year, he firmly believes that a rich mining camp will yet be struck in that territory; it may not be for a year or two, but it is there and will be found. Where so much fine gold is obtained on the bars, richer diggings are not far away. Two miners took out $6000 each; a number secured $3000 and $4000 and others all the way down to $500 and $1000. The weather in this northern region is said by Mr. Dinsmore to be simply perfect; while the winters, although extremely cold—the themometer on one occasion registering 84 degrees below zero—are not so unbearable as might be imagined, a number of white men having passed the winter pleasantly on Stewart river. Mr. Dinsmore will return to the Yukon next summer.

THE PORTAGE CUTTING.

For some time past workmen have been engaged under the superintendence of Mr. Fred. Rowbottom, in making a cutting through what is locally known as Biggs' portage. By means of this cutting the settlers on the lower end of Gabriola Island and the Island below, can reach Nanaimo without going round Jack's Point. This will be a great boon to the settlers who no doubt will appreciate the efforts of Mr. D. W. Gordon, member for Vancouver district, in obtaining a grant from the Dominion government for this purpose. The cutting is slightly curved, and is 175 feet long and 10 feet wide, and is available for boats at ordinary tides. The tide rushes through at certain times with considerable velocity, but a well manned boat can always get through when the tide is high enough to float the boat.—Free Press.

PORT MOODY.

[From a Correspondent.]

PORT MOODY, Oct. 28.—If a meeting can be called a public meeting, at which only one side has a fair hearing, and at which the chairman puts down and abuses those speaking against his pet scheme, then a public meeting was held at Port Moody last Tuesday night, for the purpose of taking steps to incorporate the place as a city. Mr. John Taylor was called to the chair and Mr. Cowderoy acted as secretary. The chairman brought out an instrument which he informed the meeting was a petition to the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council, praying for incorporation. He stated that the promoters had employed a prominent lawyer, Mr. Hamilton, to draw it up, in order to have it well done. If approved, it would be convenient for members of the meeting to sign it there and then. The petition had no blanks to be filled up by the meeting; everything in that respect was already cut and dried. The secretary then read the petition, which, as he read it, asked for the incorporation of two quarter sections only—lots 201 and 202.

Mr. Lundbom spoke against the incorporation scheme; advised prudence and waiting for the time when its need would be felt. The chairman jumped up and retorted in pretty loud and angry language.

Mr. Hamilton, who wrote the petition for the promoters, got up and called the chairman's attention to the fact that the petition embraced four quarter-sections, and not two only; but he received no satisfactory answer from the chair.

After sundry remarks by different members in the meeting, Mr. John Murray spoke in favor of incorporation and without being interrupted.

Mr. Lundbom, being against the project, spoke again, when the chairman rose suddenly and used very loud and violent language, and would not allow Mr. Lundbom to proceed. It was evident the chairman would not tolerate any one speaking against his pet scheme, and this deterred others from speaking themselves. As it was the original intention the petition should be signed at the meeting, and, as usual on such occasions, the signers would not read it, it was desirable that the meeting should know what the petition really asked for to be incorporated—four quarter-sections, as the maker of the instrument said, or two quarter sections, as the secretary read to the meeting. Mr. Lundbom asked for an explanation on this point; the chairman did not answer, but remained silent.

Mr. Lundbom moved and Captain Clark seconded, that lot 202 be struck out from the petition, which, if carried, would defeat the whole scheme; but the chairman refused to put the motion.

Mr. Norman Fraser moved that lot 203 be included within the incorporate limits which carried. I will here state that Mr. Fraser "jumped" something like 9 acres, lots, streets and all of lot 203, known as the Cooper estate, and on this land he now lives. No one lives on the Cooper estate yet, either on bought or leased ground. This looks like a raid on property. The last motion made it necessary to re-write the petition, which could therefore not be signed on the spot; but a committee was appointed to go around and get it signed next day.

The meeting, which finally decided for incorporation, was most irregular and a perfect farce. As some of those opposed to incorporation were approached next day to find out if they would consent, provided the petition embodied a proposed area, less than half of that decided by the meeting, it is impossible for an outsider to know on what shape the petition left Port Moody.

I may state that an overwhelming majority of the property owners are against incorporation for the present, or until some future day when the need of it is felt. This is admitted by the friends of incorporation, but they say the property owners should not have a voice in the matter, for it is the people, you know, the people, who rule. Apply this to lot 203. It is not the several owners who should be consulted, but the people living there, that is Mr. Fraser, the "jumper," for no one else lives there. It was he alone who demanded admittance for lot 203. Lot 203 is still unoccupied except the railway right-of-way, which may be left out of consideration.

NANAIMO NOTES.

(From the Free Press.)

Messrs. R. Hall and J. Williams, of Nanaimo, have staked off a quarter section of land apiece near Cape Mudge.

Arrangements are being made at Comox for a grand elk hunt next week. Lieut.-Col. Holmes and Adjutant N. P. Snowden, of Victoria, will go up by the next boat and take part in the hunt.

On Thursday a lad named John Ross had his fingers jammed by the wheels of a box in the Esplanade shaft.

The watchman of the steamship Wellington fell on Thursday and dislocated his shoulder.

Mr. F. M. Butler, for some time Assistant Engineer on the steamship Barnard Castle, has successfully passed the examination for first-class engineer at the Board of Trade offices, London, Eng., on Saturday, Oct. 2nd ult.

At the No. 1 Esplanade shaft of the Vancouver Coal Company, on Tuesday night, the workmen had some large timbers slung under the cage, and just as they commenced lowering the chain broke, and down went the sticks of timber a distance of 640 feet to the bottom. The second cage, which was at the bottom at the time, was badly damaged, while one of the timbers was splintered into a thousand pieces.

PRESENTATION IN YALE.

A correspondent writing from Yale states that the school pupils of that place on the 22nd ultimo, at his residence, presented their late teacher, Mr. J. Irwin, with a handsome dressing case accompanied by an address, which referred in the highest terms of praise, to the able and efficient manner in which the school had been conducted during the last four years, and of the kindly feeling existing between the pupils and teacher. The presentation was made on behalf of the pupils by Master E. Moorhouse, and briefly replied to by Mr. Irwin. Although Mr. Irwin's services, as teacher, have been dispensed with for the present, he is not forgotten by the people who still hold him in the highest esteem, and are not backward in reminding him that he carries away with him the good will and respect of almost all the residents of the town in which he has resided, with his family, for over four years.—Com.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—It is reported that the Count of Paris, one night last week was sitting in his bedroom in Shein House, near London, when a strange man entered the room. The Count who was afraid of awaking his wife, did not shout for her but hurled his revolver at the intruder who fled. The servants had previously seen a stranger prowling around the house. The man entered by a ladder which he had placed against the window in the study of the Duke of Orleans. Whether he was a burglar or a political enemy of the Count is not known.

THE ENGLISH IN EGYPT.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—It is learned on high authority that the French government has received little encouragement from Turkey in its agitation against the British in Egypt. The French envoy at Constantinople attempted recently to secure Turkey's aid in extorting from England a definite promise to evacuate Egypt at an early day. The Sultan emphatically refused to be a party to such a proceeding, and informed the envoy that the Porte could not agree with him in his strictures on the English policy respecting Egypt. To this the action of the Porte is due in regard to France's recent changes. The French government recognizes the fact that Russia, although prepared to assist in united action, is indisposed to adopt a course of which the Porte does not approve.

AMERICAN HAPPENINGS.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Michael Davitt at St. Paul and Minneapolis and Addresses Large Assemblages.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 1.—Michael Davitt, the Irish agitator, arrived here yesterday. To a Pioneer Press reporter he said "that since the Chicago convention my health has failed and I went to Northern Michigan to get the benefit of a colder climate, and was greatly benefitted. From there I went to California, the Northwest Territories, Colorado and Nebraska, and while there I stopped in the various cities and towns talking on the Irish question. At Omaha I received a cablegram from friends in the movement in Ireland, asking my immediate return; but I cabled to-day from St. Paul stating that I desired to remain in the United States and Canada until the engagements I have made are fulfilled. Unless the case is very urgent I will not return immediately. I am anxious to go to Canada to refute some statements about Mr. Parnell and myself, made by emissaries of the Loyal League." Mr. Davitt spoke to an audience of 2,000 at the Market street hall yesterday afternoon. He said he found on his trip a remarkable growth of sympathy with the Irish movement since he was in America eight years ago. Mr. Parnell's aggressive but dignified policy was the best way of conducting the movement. Mr. Parnell's fight at Westminster has made it impossible for the English parties to govern Ireland. His object in this country was to convince his own countrymen of the necessity of gaining Home Rule. These views were correct and would deepen the sympathy of the American people in the movement. He then outlined the plans of the nation when it comes into power, asserting that they would be acceptable alike to Irish Protestants as well as the Catholics. He charged that the Belfast riots were organized by Lord Churchill to convince the world that the Irish Protestants would forcibly resist Irish Home Rule. Mr. Davitt addressed another large and appreciative audience at Minneapolis tonight.

BLAINE'S MOVEMENTS.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 1.—The Hon. Jas. G. Blaine and Mr. E. C. Tinny, of Brooklyn, stayed last night at the residence of Geo. A. Haley. This morning Blaine attended the service of the Presbyterian Church. He will remain in the city until 11 a. m. to-morrow. Then he will go to Jersey City and hold a reception at Taylor's hotel, in company with Mr. B. F. Howey, Republican nominee for Governor. At 2 o'clock he will go to Trenton and speak in Taylor's opera house, and at 4:30 will take a special train for Camden, where he will end his campaign labors by speaking in the evening.

THE SCAFFOLD!

KAMLOOPS, Nov. 1.—Albert Mallott, who murdered Andrew Johnson August 15, 1885, about 15 miles east of Revelstoke, B. C., was hanged in the gaol yard here this morning. The prisoner, who was only 22 years of age, mounted the scaffold with a firm tread and never uttered a word after leaving the prison door. Rev. Mr. Harlock accompanied the condemned man to the scaffold, and after a few minutes spent in prayer the trap was sprung at exactly 8 o'clock and Mallott swung into eternity. The neck was broken and death was instantaneous. At 8.07 Dr. Clarke pronounced life extinct and at 8.40 the body was cut down and will be buried just outside the jail yard. Mallott was sentenced at the Kamloops Assizes, Sept. 15th, 1885, to be hanged on October 7, but was reprieved several times. He was the first man ever hanged here and considerable excitement prevailed and hundreds congregated around the jail yard, on buildings and wagons; while the hill at the back of the gaol was covered. Only about 30 persons were admitted to the gaol yard. The prisoner's last request to take off his boots was granted. He said he did not want to die with his boots on. Sheriff Phair and assistants deserve great credit for the manner in which everything was conducted, as the arrangements were most complete in every particular. Little sympathy prevailed for Malott, as the murder was a most cold-blooded affair. Johnson, who had spent all his money in Malott's place, asked for a cigar, and on being refused helped himself and was followed out by Malott and shot like a dog.

AH SUET SWINGS.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 1.—Ah Suet, convicted of the murder of a brother Chinaman, in August 1883, was hanged in the gaol yard here this morning at 8 o'clock. There were but few spectators outside the jail officials present.

THE ROYAL CITY

Connected with the Railway System of the Continent—Traffic Opened To-day.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 1.—The first through express train from Montreal arrived here over the New Westminster branch sharp on time, 12:23 p. m. The opening of the branch was very informal. Mayor Dickinson was presented with an address by the citizens of Port Moody, congratulating the city on the opening of the branch line and expressing the hope that the connection between the deep sea and fresh water terminus would result in mutual advantages. Mayor Dickinson replied briefly, thanking them for the address and congratulations. A large number of Port Moody people came over in anticipation of a formal opening. The train left for Port Moody at 13:30.

Gas was turned into the mains of the New Westminster Gas Co. by the Mayor this morning and will come into almost general use in the city to-night.

THE NEW CABLE.

Rates from London to Vancouver Island—Subsidies Proposed—A Strong Company.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A Tribune cable from London says the draft of the prospectus of the proposed Pacific-Australian cable shows that the promoters contemplate asking for $10,000,000 and expect to get a sixpenny rate across the Atlantic and twopenny-half-penny across to Vancouver Island, and intend charging the public four shillings per word from England to Australia and the press a shilling. They propose raising $5,000,000 in ten pound shares, and $5,000,000 in 4 per cent. stock, secured on an expected imperial and colonial guarantee of half a million annually. It is hoped that China will contribute $60,000; Australia $190,000 and the Imperial Exchequer a quarter of a million. The promoters talk of earning a net profit straightaway of $75,000. The project is generally regarded as much too sanguine. The only actual promise yet made comes from Hawaii of $100,000 annually. Canada may offer a subsidy; but neither the Imperial nor Australian governments exhibit much eagerness in the new scheme; New Zealand may come in yet because Vogel has a quarrel on hand with the Western Extension Co. and wishes to promote a rival cable.

MARCHING ONWARD.

Dr. Milne, president of the New Westminster Gas Light Company, returned from the mainland last night, whither he had been on a visit to inspect the operations of his company in the royal city. He also paid a flying visit to Vancouver, with which city and the rapid progress it is making he expresses himself as truly surprised. The terminal city is spreading out in every direction, north and south as well as west. To-day the Dr. received a telegram from the company's manager, Mr. Stamford, that gas had been turned into the service mains in New Westminster this forenoon, and that to-night the royal city for the first time will be illuminated by gas. It is a remarkable incident that a gas light and a train service should be inaugurated on the same day. Long may our sister city on the banks of the Fraser flourish; and may the new era on which she has now entered be an epoch of great prosperity to her citizens generally is the sincerest wish of THE TIMES.

HANDSOME SOUVENIR.

Mr. Andrew Gray, who left this morning for Scotland, carried with him an exceedingly handsome souvenir of Vancouver Island, consisting of views taken by himself and others along the line of railway and in the vicinity of Nanaimo and Wellington. These views were bound in a handsome volume, specially designed by Mr. Munro Miller, in morocco cover, with lettering in embossed gold. The whole was an exceedingly well executed piece of workmanship, creditable alike to the photographer and the binder, all of whom displayed the highest skill in these artistic lines. The Glasgow "chappies" and the Paisley "boddies" will open their eyes in astonishment at what Victoria can produce.

—The Nanaimo Council has agreed with the water works company to take water for twenty street hydrants. The company has guarantees of stock to justify them in going to work. A 9-inch main from the river to Hospital Hill, and a 6-inch main thence through the city, will be used. The pressure at the hydrants, it is estimated, will be from 60 to 70 pounds to the square inch.

THE QUEBEC CRISIS.

According to the Montreal Witness rumors are current that the Quebec government will advise Lieutenant-Governor MASSON to dissolve the local legislature and make a second appeal to the country, in order, if possible, for the Ross government, to secure a working majority. This indeed would be a high-handed proceeding, and, without a constitutional parallel in the history of Canada. M. MERCIER's supporters claim that they are in a sufficient strength to warrant their leader claiming a working majority, and that an opportunity should be afforded him to form a government and develope his policy for the governing of the province, in accordance with the views advocated by a majority of the people of Quebec. It is further asserted that a "round robbin" signed by a majority of the members elect has been presented to the Lieutenant-Governor asking him to dismiss the Ross cabinet, as his constitutional advisers and call to his aid the services of the Hon. Mr. MERCIER in forming a cabinet that would possess the confidence of the house. It is perfectly constitutional for the Ross cabinet to retain office until defeated on the floor of the Assembly. The practice of late, however, has been that so soon as a cabinet knows itself to be in the minority it resigns. Illustrations of this principle are to be found in the precedents laid down by Lord BEACONSFIELD Hon. ALEX. MACKENZIE, and Mr. GLADSTONE. Should the Lieut.-Governor of Quebec listen to the advice said to be tendered him to dissolve the new house and make another appeal it would be regarded as so gross an outrage on the principles of responsible government that the action would justify resort to any course in the province of Quebec that the majority believed it to be prudent to take within the limits of the constitution. From all the information we can gather, and making full allowance for party zeal in claiming persons elected as belonging to either party, we are convinced the testimony is convincing that the Ross Government has sustained an overwhelming defeat at the polls, to be repeated, if necessary on the floor of the assembly. Therefore, the statement is not true that a majority of the present Legislature were returned to support the present Ministry. It would be a gross outrage to dissolve the Legislature which the people have returned, without giving the opposition an opportunity to carry on the Government. The men who would advise such a course are conspirators, and the parties that will countenance such a proceeding have already become disqualified to honestly carrg out the principle of parliamentary government. The Montreal Herald, in commenting upon the statements of the Witness, says:

"Another rumor is that if the conspirators against the peace of the province can induce the Lieutenant-Governor to be a party to their schemes and order another election, the Federal Government will dissolve the Dominion House and bring the Federal elections on simultaneously with the Provincial elections. This, they think, is the best that could be made of a bad business; and perhaps it would be.

"But who are those 'responsible advisers' of the Governor who are expected to tender such advice as the Witness indicates? Is Mr. Taillon one of them? His Excellency's advisers must have seats in the Legislature. Has Mr. Taillon any seat in the Legislature? Has he really any more moral right to advise the Governor than any citizen who might be picked up at random on the streets? And those other 'responsible advisers?' Have they not just had a dissolution? Did they not choose their own time? Did they not go to the country with every possible advantage in their favor? Have they not been hopelessly defeated? If they have not been defeated, if they have a majority, what do they want of another dissolution? When they ask for another dissolution they confess to defeat. That is the fix they are in. They may be safely left to 'stew in their own gravy.'"

Mr. BLAKE, whose speeches are models of English, often containing most happy hits of language, was giving advice recently to the Young Liberals of London, and concluded with the remark: "I say as was said of old, go up and take the city," meaning the possible capture of London from the Conservatives. The enquiring mind of the London Free Press unfortunately hunted up the office copy of the Scriptures, and endeavored to trace this expression to its source, and this was the result of the investigation:

"It may be well to ask, by whom was this said of old? Who was the great and wise man that Mr. Blake had in mind, and who spoke in this way? Lo, it was no other than that wicked and perverse King of Assyria who pitched his warlike tents before the Holy City, in which the righteous King Hezekiah reigned with justice to his people, serving the Lord faithfully. He came down, "like a wolf on the fold," to drink up the blood of some, to put the rest of them in bondage, visit them with stripes, and pull down their holy places."

This contribution to the humor of the campaign is due to the unconscious unwariness of Mr. Blake, and the ready wit of our London contemporary.

THE FUTURE OUTLOOK.

Reports reaching us from the commercial shipping and manufacturing centres of the United States, as well as from several of the great centres of Britain and the continent of Europe, indicate that a healthy revival of trade is about to set in. The omens undoubtedly indicate the approach of a cycle of trade prosperity throughout the world. So many commercial weather vanes in widely separated countries point to a return of true prosperity that no one need any longer entertain doubt on the subject; and unless mighty disasters, at present not visible in the outlook, shall descend upon us we may confidently expect that things will speedily brighten up beautifully in every region where special hindrances do not necessitate a permanent stagnation. In Europe the gratifying activity comes at a time when there is every outward reason for withholding investments, and confining all operations to present requirements. The air is burdened with war rumors, and scarcely a day passes without fresh accounts of religious riots and serious outbreaks by the socialists or other would-be government destroyers. But political discord and uncertainty cannot prevent a revival of business when the more important wants of humanity absolutely require an increase of supply. For many moons, as our basket-making friends would say, the aspects of trade have been so peculiarly quiet that the tremendous accumulations resulting from over-production have had a chance to gradually melt away and finally disappear. And as people still must eat, drink, wear clothes, live in houses, and also have some amusement, there had to be a general starting up all around in order to supply this natural demand, and when the wheels of trade once get in motion they roll along smoothly and steadily until the markets become glutted and there has to be a season of slowness, or over-enterprise makes everything fly so swiftly that everybody gets crazy with his occupation and pushes with such unreasoning vigor that affairs presently come to a standstill in a big international smash up.

In the United States the return of good times has been kept back for an extended period, and millions that long since ought to have been in circulation, providing business for merchants and employment for thousands of hard workers, remained idle and practically useless in the coffers of capitalists, who would not invest it while there was no prospect of profit or even getting their money back. At last, however, nearly all of the many causes which have continued this depression may be said to have worn themselves out. Strikes, counterstrikes and labor riots have about exhausted their forces, and the real conflict of another presidential election will not begin for more than a year to come. So, with fifty-five millions of people, billions of money and generally excellent crops, what is there to hinder a first-class waking up? The boom in business comes along simply because it cannot help coming. During the present winter the toiling masses of that land, with the safeguard of wages, may laugh at cold and storm and bury the memory of hard times in the grave of forgotten miseries.

UNITED STATES' ELECTIONS.

Next Wednesday will decide the destiny of political parties in the United States for the succeeding two years. An American contemporary observes that as it is the first general congressional election under a Democratic national administration since 1861, more than usual interest for an "off year" attaches. It is believed that there will not be any break in the ranks of the South; in fact a solid vote is expected from that section of the Union. That this is attributed to the fact that since the accession of the present administration the Republicans have become so disheartened in many of the Southern districts that they are letting the elections go by default. Whatever may be the cause, this is a most unfortunate condition of affairs. When either party becomes so supreme that opposition is useless, one of the strongest safeguards for political integrity is removed. Secure from the vigilant scrutiny of an opposition, the wholesome restraints resulting from watchful criticism are withdrawn and the dominant party becomes little less than autocratic in its power over a helpless voting minority. In each of the doubtful states, with the exception of Nevada, the Legislature is to elect a Senator to succeed a Republican. HAWLEY, of Connecticut, MILLER, of New York, SEWELL, of New Jersey, and HARRISON, of Indiana, besides Williams, of California, will close their present terms with this Congress. In view of the present closeness of the political vote in the Senate, it is idle to look for any material gain in that body. It will require the utmost dilligence for the party to hold its own. With all the prestige of the Administration in its favor, the Democracy will strive its utmost to capture the majority of Upper House. With both branches and the executive all in the hands of the Democracy, that party would have a clean sweep in matters of political legislation. It is not a pleasant prospect to contemplate, and everything depends upon the energy of the party in returning Republican Legislatures in each of the doubtful States. That the Republicans in those States fully understand the responsibilities resting on them is evident. They are, moreover, making a gallant fight in Nevada, and the present indications are that they will send a Republican from that State to succeed Mr. FAIR. It is doubtful if the Prohibition movement will materially affect the result in either of the States named, and as for the Mugwumps, neither side seems to want them.

The girl was sinking on the floor, when the mother with a bound was at her side, and caught her as she fell. Bestowing a single glance upon the group Mr. Strangfield strode into the passage, seized his hat, and left the house.

With long, resolute steps he swung his arms up the High street to the corner of the road that led to Greystone school.

The boys were at their games in the playground as he skirted the wall.

Mr. Strangfield walked to the house door with a resolved step, and pulled the bell. The servant examined his face curiously, as if she would read tidings of Dr. Shaw's son there, but hesitated when questioned if the doctor could be seen.

"Tell him that I have come to talk to him about the young master," said Strangfield; whereupon the girl admitted him, but left him in the hall, while she went into the study. Then returning: "If you please, what name?" But Strangfield was in no temper for formality, even if he were one to admit its uses; he put the servant aside and entered the study, closing the door behind him.

The room was darkened by the curtains; yet there was light enough to disclose the figure of Dr. Shaw, seated near the table, his head lifted out of his hand, staring at the unceremonious intruder. In an instant he rose, and, drawing himself erect, exclaimed:

"I have not the pleasure to know you, sir. I desired the servant to obtain your name."

"My name is Michael Strangfield, and my trade be shipbuilding. I'm a deacon of the Baptist chapel, in George street, which is better than saying that only a bitter errand could have brought me into Dr. Shaw's house."

"Be pleased to sit," said the doctor, coldly, and stepped to the window and drew apart the curtain.

"Be pleased to sit," said the doctor, coldly.

Now were the features of both fathers visible, and never was offered a greater contrast of faces. The doctor, who had not been in bed all night, had a haggard look, which showed strongly on his plump, ruddy cheeks; were anguish with anxiety and fatigue. Yet the dignity of good breeding was in the repose of his face, and in his manner especially marked. On the other hand was the worn and handsome face of the shipwright, scorn and shame gleaming with a half-smothered light in his eyes, and the iron will of his nature hardening the curve and set of his mouth, and inclining his head to a backward fall of half-derisive haughtiness. With both hands he held his hat to his breast, taking no notice of the other's invitation to sit.

"Sir," he said, slowly, "there is a report below that your son is missing. But I am not a man to heed the town's gossip. Let me know from you that this is so."

"It is so," replied the doctor, eyeing him keenly.

"Is this sudden leaving of you unexpected?"

"Totally unexpected, Mr. Strangfield, if you have news to give concerning him, I beg you, in the name of humanity, not to withhold it."

"Answer me this, Dr. Shaw: Do you know that he is married?" said Strangfield breathing deeply, and speaking with difficulty.

"Married!" cried the doctor, with unmistakable astonishment. "Certainly not, sir—most assuredly not, indeed!"

"I pray you reflect before you speak, sir. As you answer me now, so shall you be judged by Almighty God, who will hold you accountable for the action of your offspring. By word or look has your son Cuthbert ever given you reason to suspect he hath a wife?"

"Mr. Strangfield," replied the doctor, shocked by the energy of this adjuration, "I have given you a plain answer, and still my reply is, No. What has put this extraordinary notion into you, head?"

"Then your son is a villain and a robber! the plunderer of my child's innocence and my name and honor! He hath enticed her into vile wrongs; he hath taught her a deceit that hell itself would rebuke, and now hath left her to dwell alone in the disgrace and ruin he hath overwhelmed her with!" He let fall his hat, and buried his face in his hands.

The doctor stood petrified.

"In God's name, man," he cried, "speak out, and give some meaning to your charges. Dead or living, my son is outraged by your language, and before you leave this room you shall name me his offense, that I may establish his innocence."

With a shake of the head, as if he would clear his brain, Strangfield looked up.

"My daughter Jenny has this day told me that she is secretly married to your son. Do you heed me? That she is his wife, sir, which you would now make out a lie! Clear him of that!"

The doctor put up his hand. He was a man of decisive theories, and as bigoted at one pole of thought as Strangfield was at the other. So calmly confident was he his son was not married that he would not even condescend to reason the matter to himself.

"Your daughter," said he, in a cold voice, "is either wilfully deceiving you, or labors under some astonishing delusion. I am intimately acquainted with my son's nature and disposition, and do most positively assure you that he is the last man in the world to ever enact marriage clandestinely."

He spoke with a little curl of the lip, for he was very confident on this point.

"But—" he was continuing; then stopped and frowned, with his eyes bent on the floor.

"You were about to say it!" shrieked the unhappy father. "Speak out and clear him, for the name of God! I have called him villain, robber—clear him."

"I must beg you to restrain your impetuosity," returned the doctor, haughtily. "If my son has acted the part of a villain, you will not mend matters by clamoring at me. Statements have been made to you by your daughter, and their verification is a simple matter. But, mark me, she is deceiving you."

With a heavy effort Strangfield calmed himself, and, with a struggling face and twitching fingers, essayed to speak reasonably.

"You say my girl hath deceived me. This truly has she done, to the speaking gospel of a devil's lie, to what she told her mother. Yet you must know, sir, that up to this day never had I a cause to doubt her as a good girl. She declares that she was married to your son three weeks ago, when we had sent her for a change of air to her aunt, who lives at Sydenham."

The doctor grew a shade paler.

"Three weeks ago! My son was in London then. Good heaven, sir, he surely—the improbability—the—the—" Mr. Strangfield kept his glowing eyes bent on him. "For some time past," the doctor went on, "I have noticed a change in him, and his answers have been full of evasion. But if he were married, he cried, in his eagerness straining his head forward, and leaning with both hands on the table, "would he abandon his wife and mysteriously depart as he has now done, leaving no hint behind him either of his motive or his whereabouts. Oh, Mr. Strangfield, that speaks for itself. That is a very persuading argument against your daughter, sir."

"It is that which has brought me here!" cried Strangfield in a voice of thunder. "Has he gone? You answer yes. If he loved her well enough to marry her he would not leave her. If he had betrayed her, then have you his reason for flying!"

Dr. Shaw turned to pace the room. Light was beginning to dawn on him. It was difficult for him to bring his mind to believe that Cuthbert was guilty of a mortal sin; yet here was the father of the girl violent in heavy charges, so that the existence of the victim at least was an established fact by surest proof.

"As the husband of your daughter he would not have left her," he said, speaking in a tone of pain and shame, and with something like horror in the expression of his eyes. "May God forgive him if he has brought disgrace upon the innocent! But, Mr. Strangfield, have not you approached your conclusion with extreme hurry? On the statement of your daughter, unsupported by any evidence, you convict her and my son. She affirms herself married; and if this be so, it is most easy of proof. But though the marriage cannot be proved, what impeachment should there be in the silence of evidence, unless you have testimony to satisfy you of their guilt?"

Mr. Strangfield picked up his hat and turned it about vacantly in his hands.

"I came here," he said, in a low voice, "to find out if your son hath truly left you, as reported. If he be my daughter's husband, it shall be proved soon. Sir, I thank you for receiving me civilly, and bearing with me. For forty years have I dwelt in Greystone, and for all that time no man hath ever pointed his finger at me for any act of wrong. That my girl hath owned to a secret marriage is a bitter disgrace upon me, who have ever tried to teach her the hatefulness of deceit, as the pathway of one that forgets the Lord. If you have news of your son, sir, you will please to acquaint me with it, that I may sift this business to the bottom."

And turning abruptly he left the room, and in a moment the doctor heard the hall door closed.

WANTED TO SEE THE ASTORS.

How a Curiosity Seeker Once Managed to Secure a Brief Interview.

I know a man who desired to get an audience with the present heads of the Astor family. They are not easily accessible for strangers. Every caller is required to state his business to a clerk, who communicates with one of the great millionaires if necessary, but more than likely refers the matter to a competent subordinate. But my friend was bound to see the Astors, just to gratify his curiosity, for he had no business with them. Their offices are in a bank-like structure in a side street close to Broadway. On one front door is the name "John Jacob Astor" and on the other "William W. Astor." He entered an interior that was fitted up with high rails and inclosed desks, so that the visitor had to make his application to a face that appeared behind an aperture in a wired fence. Two begging Sisters of Charity were being politely, but firmly rebuffed, and several tenants were paying their rents. To all inquirers for an Astor the same answer was given—that neither was to be seen. The curiosity seeker comprehended that he would fail unless he resorted to some winning device.

"I have an appointment with the old gentleman, he said, drawing his watch, after the manner of a hurried man; "I suppose they are in?"

"I will see," replied the clerk; "shall I take in your card?"

"If you please," and the imposter produced one; "and say to them that I am sorry to be five minutes late."

The ingenuity of the attack brought victory. He was shown promptly into the presence of the two Astors. They were old-fashioned, gray of hair and whiskers, and not in any way remarkable to look at. The apartment was the private office of John Jacob Astor, but William was there, and seemingly dominant with his larger stature, fuller face and more emphatic mien. The furniture was very heavy, but plain, and the place suggested the president's room in a bank of moderate pretensions. William still held the card in his hand, and was evidently trying to recall the name as that of somebody who had made an appointment.

"What is it, sir?" he said inquiringly.

"I called to see whether it would be of any use to make an offer for some real estate that belongs to you," responded the caller coolly.

He knew well enough that he was safe, because the Astors sell no property under any circumstances. Said William: "I hardly think so. What piece had you in mind?"

"The Astor house. There is a project to buy that, and——"

"Quite impracticable. No offer in any amount would be considered." But he had seen the Astors, all the same.—"Uncle Bill" in Chicago Herald.

A Result of Judicious Flattery.

Smith—Brown, you're fine this morning.

Brown (pleased)—Think so?

Smith—I know so. You look as fresh as a daisy.

Brown (more pleased)—Yes!

Smith—Yes. You can stay out with the boys and show up in the morning all right.

Brown (more than pleased)—Yes, a little thing like that don't affect me much.

Smith—It don't affect you a particle. I never saw such a man. I say, Brown, can you lend me a fiver?

Brown (with absolute enthusiasm)—Certainly, my dear boy, certainly.—New York Sun.

DR. LEDUC'S PERIODICAL PILLS.

These Pills are compounded from the purest drugs, from those only which are known to act upon the generative organs in females. It is a well known fact that a very large proportion of the ills to which females are liable, are the direct results of suppressed or disordered menstruation, and it is necessary therefore that safe and reliable remedy for the cure of these diseases be placed within the reach of every one. Dr. LeDuc's Pills are the oldest, most generally used, and most reliable remedy for the cure of suppressed menstruation, and other uterine diseases, and wherever they have been introduced have driven every other remedy out of the market. They were first introduced into Paris, France, by Dr. LeDuc in 1839, and have so gained the confidence of the public that they have for years been the standing remedy in every household. CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Ask your grocer for the Portland Roller flour. *

—Bavaria beer, five cents per glass, at the Royal Hotel, cor. Fort & Douglas streets. *

—Photographic views along the line of the C. P. R. in B. C., for sale at R. MAYNARD'S, Douglas St.

—Columbian: "We are afraid our friend of the Colonist is developing into sensationalism."

—All first class dealers and grocers keep the Portland Roller flour. Buy no other. *

—Yesterday's trains on the Island Railway carried a large number of passengers.

—To-day is All-Saint's Day. Services were held in the View street cathedral this morning.

—St. Joseph's social and literary society meet to-morrow evening at the rooms on Yates street.

—Fresh oysters by the bottle delivered to all parts of the city. Young Bros., New England Bakery, Government street, between Yates and Johnson streets. *

—King & Casey will begin driving their logs down the Courtenay River this week. The drive will contain 3,500,000 feet of timber.

—Mr. Wm. White's son, Jack, aged 11 years, yesterday killed a magnificent buck deer at Langford Lake. The young man is commencing early.

—The Portland Roller Mills flour was awarded the first gold medal at the Mechanics Fair, October 16th, at Portland, Oregon, for superiority against all other Oregon flours. *

—The remains of Mr. Hy. Walther, were interred at Ross Bay on Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the A. O. U. W. The burial service was impressively read by Rev. Mr. Stephen, of St Andrew's.

—Economical house-keepers will save time and money by using Ogilvy's brand of eastern FLOUR to be had from all leading grocers and wholesale by J. C. Devlin, DeCosmos' block, Government st. *

—Mr. A. B. Erskine has leased the old I. X. L. store, corner Johnson and Government streets, and will open a new boot and shoe store there in the course of a few weeks.

—Mr. D. Ross, a resident of Victoria for over fifteen years, and for five or six years in the employ of the C. P. N. Co., died at Truro, N. S., a few weeks ago. Mr. Ross went home an invalid about six weeks ago.

—Mr. Joseph Sears has commenced the erection of a two-story building on Yates street, east of Mr. J. Barron's. Yates street is improving rapidly, and promises to become one of our principal business thoroughfares.

—As may be seen by advertisement in another column, the B. C. Express Co. will continue to receive parcels and packages for Nanaimo at the following rates: Under 10 lbs, 25 cents; under 25 lbs and over 10 lbs, 50 cents; money rates, 40 cents per $100.

Hall & Quackenbush, Vancouver, B. C. have the most complete list of business and suburban properties for sale at the terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Price and terms to suit all parties. Inquiries by mail promptly answered. References. *

—The customs collections at New Westminster for October have been: Customs duties, $8,141.88; other revenues, $458.94; total, $8,600.82. This is an increase of $1,668.19 over the corresponding month of last year. Every month in 1886 has shown a substantial increase.

—Messrs. Youdall & Mellis, who came to this province from the east some months ago, have been putting up a quantity of salmon on the North Arm of the Fraser, both salted and kippered. They complain that the railway rates are so high as to shut out salmon from the eastern markets.

—Mr. John Grant brought down from Cassiar samples of potatoes and oats grown on the ranch of his firm at Glenora, Stickeen River, and they are on view at Campbell's. One potato weighs 2¾ lbs. and the oat straw measures over six feet in length, and is well headed out. It would be impossible to produce the superior of either in any country.

—The New Westminster branch railway was operated to-day for the first time. The Atlantic express leaves at 12:47 p. m. and the Pacific express arrives at 12:23 p. m. The statement of a city paper that it would not be used for passenger trains is thus disproved. Until the completion of the branch to Vancouver, New Westminster will do the larger share of the through passenger business. The fare to Port Moody will be 85 cents.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

Helen Peck, charged with stealing a watch and chain from Antonie Frazer. The prisoner, a Fort Simpson Indian woman of easy virtue stated that the prisoner had stayed with her for several days, and that she had taken the watch for security. She was sent to gaol for three months with hard labor.

Peter, a West coast Indian; fined $10 for being drunk and fighting.

Ah Sing, a Chinese laundryman was summoned by Capt. R. Green, for detaining clothing. Settled out of court.

DRUNKEN INDIANS.

A gentleman, just returned from the northeast coast of Vancouver Island, says the Indians there are supplied with all the liquor they want. There is a great deal of drunkenness among them, and as there is no constable north of Nanaimo and no person to keep them in order, they are having a high old time. It will not be surprising, under these circumstances, if the orgies of the red man should result in something worse than more drunkenness, and murder be committed. It is not known where the liquor comes from, but possibly it is smuggled in by the hop-pickers on their way north.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

A deputation of Victoria Knights, numbering eighteen, went to Vancouver last Saturday and installed the officers of a new lodge of Granville No. 3. The following were installed by Deputy Supreme W. S. Chambers, C. C., F. Hart; V. C., R. Clark; Prelate, W. Watson; P. C., Chris Benson; M. E., J. Hayden; M. F., A. Secord; K. and S., F. Murray; M. and A., F. Blomquist. The officers and members attended a banquet at the Gold House in the evening and a merry time was spent by all. Success to the new lodge.

LITERARY AND MUSICAL.

Entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. Hall To-Night.

From the present outlook it appears as if the public would enjoy its best opportunity afforded in some time to listen to the rendering of a number of the great characters of the Bard of Avon. We are pleased to announce in this connection that Mr. Charles Dudley, the eminent Shakespearean reader of New York city, assisted by Mr. R. W Fiske and Miss Marion Fisk, instrumental and vocal soloists, of Boston, Mass., have been engaged by the Young Men's Christian Association of this city, and will give a dramatic and musical recital at their hall this evening at half past seven o'clock. As an elocutionist Mr. Dudley stands at the head of his profession. Clear in pronunciation, dramatic in presentation, keen in ideal conception, with a ready fund of natural wit, as also a touching and sympathetic manner, his readings are very popular. He is acknowledged by the press as one of the most scholarly and finished dramatic readers in the country. The admission has been put at fifty and twenty-five cents. *

THE GALLOWS.

The Execution of Mallott To-day at Kamloops—The Crime Committed.

This morning at 8 o'clock, at Kamloops, Albert Mallott paid the penalty of his life for the crime of murder. The deed was a cold blooded one, equally as ferocious as the murder perpetrated by Rogers at New Westminster. On the 9th of August, 1885, Andrew Johnson, a Swede, and some others were playing cards in O'Keefe's saloon, where Mallott was employed as bartender. A quarrel occuring over the game Mallott removed the cards. Shortly after Johnson reached over the bar and helped himself liberally to cigars and started for his camp. Mallott on learning this armed himself with a rifle and started after him, and, when within a short distance of his victim, deliberately shot him. The prisoner was returned to Kamloops for execution, so that the punishment might be given in the locality where the crime was committed. Mallott is the first to suffer death by hanging in Kamloops.

THE RIEL QUESTION.

During the delivery of his address at New Westminster on Friday evening, Mr. John Charlton, M. P., in reference to the Riel question said that be had been accused by one of the papers in Victoria—the Colonist—of having dodged the Riel question in his speech there. The Riel question formed no part of the Liberal policy, but be would not dodge it on this occasion. In the House of Commons Mr. Landry, who on the Riel question and on that alone voted against the government, introduced a motion to compel the Liberal party to array itself on this question. It was found that there was a considerable divergence in the opinions of the members of the Liberal party respecting it, 16 Reformers from Ontario voting with the government that Riel was justly hanged, while 17 voted against the government and that the government were deserving of censure in this matter. Of the Reformers from Quebec, 27 voted against the government while 23 voted with it. Those who voted against the government held that Riel was a crank, and therefore that his crime could not be treated as a capital offense; those who voted with it holding that as he had twice incited revolt he should hang. No action, however, was taken as a party, and in Haldimand, the only election held in Ontario since that vote was taken, it was found impossible to introduce this question or to influence votes by it one way or the other.

A HANDSOME PRESENT.

Mr. Lewis Lewis, ex-President of the Congregation Emanu El, was yesterday waited upon by the present officers of that body and presented with a handsome ebony walking stick, surmounted by a heavy gold head. The presentation was made by Mr. A. Ofner, as President, who eulogised the untiring energy displayed by ex-President Lewis since the formation of the congregation, and his benevolence to other sects. Mr. Lewis replied in an appropriate manner, thanking the deputation and wishing the future of the Jewish community as great prosperity as in the past. The cane, which is a very handsome and valuable one, bears the following inscription: "Presented to Lewis Lewis, Esq., by Congregation Emanu El, Nov. 1, 1886," neatly engraved by Mr. Crowther, of Fort street.

SHAKESPEAREAN READINGS.

Mr. Chas Dudley, a Shakespearean reader of New York City, assisted by Mr. R. W. Fiske and Miss Marion Fiske instrumental and vocal soloists of Boston, will give an entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-night. Referring to their entertainment in Portland the News of that city says: "A fine audience gathered last evening on the closing night of Mr. Dudley's readings. His selections were all rendered with taste and great dramatic power. Mr. Dudley has a fine presence, a clear, penetrating, flexible voice, and withal is perfectly natural. In the trial scene from the "Merchant of Venice," his Shylock excelled all previous efforts. Mr. Dudley is, without doubt, the finest elocutionist our people have heard for some time."

ACCIDENT.

Mr. Frank Atwood, in the employ of Mr. A. Ofner, Government street, met with a severe accident last night on the Gorge road near the brickyard by the horse on which he was riding stumbling, whereby the young man was thrown and his collar bone broken. Drs. Hall and Hall are attending to the injuries, but it will probably be two months before the break heals sufficiently to allow him to perform his duties.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

On Sunday morning, about 8 o'clock, Alfred Chadwick, son of the late Thos. Chadwick, was kicked in the head by a horse, which he was attempting to stop, on Government street. He was picked up in an unconscious state and taken into the New England bakery and afterwards to his home on Blanchard street. Dr. Hall dressed the wound, and to-day the boy is nearly all right again. It was a very narrow escape.

FOR GREENER PASTURES.

A Calgary paper says that "Mr. George Hamilton has taken his brother Robert and another gentleman from British Columbia up north to look up a suitable location for a band of stock. If these gentlemen are successful in finding a place to suit them, they will remove their horses and cattle from British Columbia in the spring." Several of our stock-raisers, we understand, have provided themselves with ranches on the east of the Rockies.

OLD OFFICERS VS. STRANGERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR—As a few remarks made by me last Wednesday evening at the meeting of the City Council seem to have excited considerable comment, and as some interested party seems desirous of misleading the public into believing that I had expressed myself as averse to seeing strangers receive employment at the hands of the corporation, I may be allowed to say that such is far from being the case. A letter in yesterday's Colonist from "Citizen," (whom I must thank for having taken up the cudgels in my behalf) very clearly shows the position taken by me, in the discussion that ensued upon a report from the Police Committee recommending the permanent appointment of a gentleman lately, I believe, from Australia, to a vacancy on the police force, in which I maintained that an officer of the corporation must be appointed by ballot, according to the bylaws governing our procedure. I at the same time deprecated the action of the committee in appointing an entire stranger to a position on the force, when we had a number of old officers seeking employment who had been discharged when the numerical strength of the force was reduced last March. I merely contended, and I think justly, that these men should be considered first when a vacancy had to be filled.

LIBEL SUITS.

Dr. Trew, since his return from the east, has gone on the war-path. During his absence a letter respecting the death of Mrs. W. Reed, written by the woman's husband, was published in the Columbian. He has already entered actions for libel against Reed and the publisher, claiming in the last instance $10,000. Dr. Trew could not—if he had any regard for his reputation—allow the statements published to go uncontradicted.

IT STANDS AT THE HEAD!

The Light Running Domestic.

This Cut shows the kind of Woodwork the Company is now introducing.

The new line of Attachments that are now being placed with each "Domestic" are specialties. No other machine has them. These Attachments and the New Woodwork make the "Domestic" more than ever, without question, THE ACKNOWLEDGED STANDARD OF EXCELLENCE.
